

3. Education technology is a developing, and still fragmented marketplace. Schools are investing heavily in adaptive software, devices, and learning management systems (LMS), which offer both opportunities and challenges to leadership in education.

Source: Managing For Results at America's Great City Schools